THE ACADEMY.

Thurston, the Magician.

Thurston, the only real present-day magician, mystified a large audience last night at the Academy with his ingenious performance of feats that amazed and confounded all, at the same time keeping the people in a laughing mood while working up his sensational array of tricks and presenting what may safely be said to be the climax of profoundest achievement in modern maric.

achievement in modern magic.

Like Kellar, who was a great favorite with the American public, Thurston is an actor, and by the expression of his face, by his gesture, by the tone of his voice—in short, by his acting—he pro-duces his effects. The audience, appar-ently in a watchful and critical state of mind, summoning all their keenness and resolve to find him out, seemed to be mystified, and completely surrendered and gave him generous applause. The many comedy experiments, as finding rabhits and various objects in the pockets of people in the audience, produced a lot of fun among the sent-holders, as did the experiment of having your hat crushed and shot full of holes before your very eyes, and then furnished a new hat of the proper size, &c. The entire programme is most interesting, and the paraphernalia is very elaborate.

Starting Monday, April 28, a supplementary season of stock will be offered at this theater, under the direction of Ed. W. Rowland, who will present, from week to week, a number of big scenic Josie Flynn, said to be the funniest girl in vaudeville, and her companion "end man," Emma Krause, in black-face minstrelsy, furnished the cause for laughter in abundance, while Dothle Claire, Amanda Gilbert, and Claire Perri, with their songs, supplemented by the "Rigoletto" quartet, provided the delight in song numbers. The Gaby gilde by Miss Flynn and Margie Craus was also a telling number. This little company, which has a record of twenty weeks continuous performances in New York and of ten weeks in Philadelphia, is one of the real big features of the "big time" houses.

COSMOS.

"Dorothy's Playmates" is delighting the children at the Commos Theatet this week. It is presented by nine people, five of them girls and four of them animal impersonators. The little musical fantany has a semblance of a plot and a great deal of very pretty incidental music. Some of its real novelties are "The Cat Chorus" and "The Tale of the Jack o'Lantern." The production was built by Joseph Hart, whose fame as "Toxy Grandpa" is countrywide, and its music was composed by Edwin F. Kendal.
